Malbec 2023

Three soils, one balanced Malbec.

Malbec is the grape winemaker Matías knows best, from years of making it in Argentina and in Mexico, and in Parras it has proven itself, together with Cabernet Franc, as the standout red. 2023 was warm and dry with no spring frosts, so the vines stayed healthy and yields bounced back from 2022 with excellent quality. Matías vinified Malbec from three soil types separately, with excellent results from each, then brought them together into a beautifully balanced wine with depth, structure and the stuffing to age.

The Vineyard

High-desert vineyards with big day-to-night temperature swings, strong sunlight and a mix of soils.

Site	Valle de Parras
Elevation	1,500 m (~5,000 ft)
Soil	Clay, silt, schist, sand
Planted	2015–2016
Farming	Sustainable

In the Cellar

Each soil's fruit vinified separately on native yeasts in stainless steel, then blended and aged in oak.

Harvest	Aug 7–8, 2023
Fermentation	Native yeast, stainless
Oak	80% French, 20% American
New oak	20%
Filtration	3 microns

Three Soils

2023 was a side-by-side study of silty-calcareous, silty and stony soils. Each turned out excellent on its own, and together they make a highly balanced wine.

> Agronomically and enologically, Malbec performs exceptionally well in Parras.

Serve at 16–18 °C (61–64 °F).
Pair with carne asada, short ribs or chimichurri.

Founded in 1998 by the Rivero González family, RGMX grows everything on its own estate in Valle de Parras, Coahuila, one of Mexico's original wine regions, planted since the 1500s. The family has long farmed the region, producing premium organic nuts for generations.

Winemaker Matías Utrero Carmona, a native of Argentina now living in Mexico, works with low-intervention methods across three lines: Vinos de Tierra (amphora), RGMX (oak barrels) and Scielo.
